

Meet the Team

Leslie Chang Evertson, GNP
Lead Dementia Care Manager

What led you to become a nurse practitioner?

I became a nurse practitioner because I wanted to care for people. Shortly after starting as a Geriatric Nurse Practitioner I realized how complicated health care was for older adults, especially for those that could not make their own healthcare related decisions. The time and effort it took to honor my patient's wishes, educating and supporting their families, could not be done to my satisfaction in primary care. When I learned that the UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care Program was created, I knew it sounded like the perfect job for me.

Name one thing about yourself that most people don't know.

After graduating with my nursing degree I seriously considered changing my career and applied to the Culinary Institute of America in Napa. My admission was contingent on working in a kitchen for a year first. After looking at what my student loan bill was going to be, I took my nursing boards and went to work at UCLA as a RN instead.

Michelle Panlilio, NP
Dementia Care Manager

Name one thing about yourself that most people don't know.

I am the youngest of four children and also the only girl. My brothers took it upon themselves to help my parents raise me to become a proper young lady. At 5 years old, my Dad and brothers taught me calligraphy, self-defense, and marksmanship.

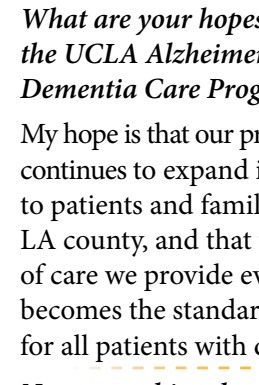

Mihae Kim, AGNP
Dementia Care Manager

What do you love about your job?

I am specialized in chronic disease management (dementia), for which current health care systems provide only limited services and lack comprehensive care.

I believe that our program fills the gaps in the current health care system.

Additionally, I enjoy working with patients and their families on different stages of the disease (mild to advanced stage and through to hospice patients) based on individually tailored care plans suited to addressing each patient's unique needs. We have four other amazing Nurse Practitioners who work closely together to create a very safe and supportive working environment with a great team.

Jeanine Moreno, AGNP
Dementia Care Manager

What are your hopes for the UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care Program?

My hope is that our program continues to expand its services to patients and families across LA county, and that the model of care we provide eventually becomes the standard of care for all patients with dementia.

Name one thing that most people don't know about you.

I'm fluent in Spanish and I also speak conversational Italian and French. I also find "Most Interesting Man in the World" radio commercials incredibly funny!

Claudia Wong MSN, FNP-C
Dementia Care Manager

What do you love about your job?

As a Dementia Care Manager, I feel that I am very fortunate to have been allowed into the lives of families who have been affected by dementia to help guide them through all that the progressive and currently incurable condition brings.

What do you enjoy doing in your free time?

In my free time, I am quite a curious and adventurous person. This includes scuba diving 130 feet deep into the pristine waters of Belize to explore the collapsed caves in the seemingly bottomless ocean alongside sharks, to hiking for four days to reach the top of the mystical site of Machu Picchu in Peru at 7,970 feet elevation.

Ynez Tongson

Dementia Care Manager Assistant

What are your hopes for the UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care Program?

I hope we can continue helping families and their loved ones, as well as improving quality of life. I also hope we can continue to assist in providing comprehensive and culturally appropriate care.

What do you love about your job?

I love being able to connect and interact with people.

Anthony Yaney

Program Manager

What do you love about your job?

The best part of my job is getting to work with our Dementia Care Managers. They're the best at their jobs, but even more than that, they are simply amazing women.

What led you to become the program manager?

After working as an assistant to the Dementia Care Managers for about a year, I realized that I wanted to further my career within the Program. As soon as the Program Manager position opened up, I submitted my name and, thankfully, I got it. The experience has been amazing so far, and I look forward to my continued growth in the program.

Michael Leuchter

Dementia Care Manager Assistant

What is your biggest achievement in the UCLA ADC Program?

As a volunteer and as an employee, it always made my day when I would talk to a patient or patient's family and they would say "thank you." To me that means we're doing something right, and I consider that a big achievement.

What do you enjoy doing in your free time?

Between work and applying to medical school, I may not have much free time, but I certainly take advantage of it! I always enjoy going out with my friends, curling up with a good book, or reading up on the latest in medical technology.

Zaldy Tan, MD, MPH

Medical Director

What led you to become the Medical Director?

I have had a professional interest in memory disorders diagnosis, treatment and prevention for many years. When the opportunity came to be the Medical Director of this innovative program, I seized it. I have held this role since the program's inception over three years ago.

What are your hopes for the UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care Program?

The UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care program represents a ray of hope for a brighter future for persons with memory loss. I hope that the work that we do will continue to expand and benefit an even greater number of patients and family caregivers. I also hope to educate students, trainees and other health professionals on the importance of care coordination and management in ensuring the health of persons with dementia and the people who care for them.

David Reuben, MD

Program Director

What do you love about your job?

Every aspect of my job is about helping people. As a doctor, I help older people achieve their personal health and quality of life goals. As a teacher, I help my trainees learn and achieve their professional goals. As a researcher, I work to find discoveries that will improve the health and quality of life of older persons whom I will never meet.

What are your hopes for the UCLA Alzheimer's and Dementia Care Program?

At UCLA, I would like to see the program endowed by a generous donor. Beyond that, I would like to see the program replicated and spread throughout the country so that all patients and caregivers could benefit from this wonderful program.
